

Fortas' Judgment Is Under Question

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Jack Miller, R-Iowa, said today that Supreme Court Justice Abe Fortas' judgment in obscenity cases is "abhorrent to the maintenance of moral standards by our communities."

In a Senate speech, Miller called on President Johnson to withdraw his nomination of Fortas to succeed Chief Justice Earl Warren.

Miller noted the Senate Judiciary Committee has received testimony that in May and June of 1967 the Supreme Court reversed 23 of 26 state and federal convictions for violating laws on obscenity and reversed 26 additional cases in the court term that ended last month.

"Justice Fortas voted with the 5-4 majority in all of these cases," Miller said.

He added that although Fortas did not write any opinions in these cases setting forth his judicial philosophy on this subject, "We do have his judgment in the reversals of these cases."

"And," Miller said, "the judgment is abhorrent to the maintenance of moral standards by our communities. It is a judgment which encourages the permissiveness and criminal activity which are plaguing our society."

One case in which Fortas voted to reverse a conviction involved three strip-tease films, entitled 0-7, 0-12 and D-15, that were ruled hard-core pornography by a federal district judge, a Los Angeles jury, and California appellate courts.

The film 0-7, consisting entirely of a model who strips off a bra, garter belt and sheer, transparent panties, already has been viewed by a three-man subcommittee of the Judiciary Committee.

Sen. Robert P. Griffin said meanwhile the drive he leads to block Fortas' confirmation as chief justice has gained new strength as the result of just-concluded Judiciary Committee hearings.

But Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., said he is confident "a substantial majority of senators will vote to confirm" Fortas.

The Judiciary Committee is not expected to act on the Fortas

Widely Scattered Racial Outbursts in Big Cities

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sporadic racial violence erupted Thursday night and early Friday in five areas ranging from Erie, Pa., to Seattle, Wash., with Cleveland and Chicago again the major targets.

Roving gangs of juveniles smashed several windows along Detroit's 12th Street, scene of the start of last year's riot which claimed 43 lives. However, police described the situation Friday as "nothing out of the ordinary."

Reversing his policy of trying to let black community leaders control the situation, Cleveland Mayor Carl Stokes reinstated a dusk-to-dawn curfew in Cleveland's Negro slums. It was enforced by National Guardsmen and white police.

There were 30 arrests—two for looting, one for arson and 27 for curfew violation. Several small fires broke out on the East Side where 10 persons, including three policemen, were killed in shootings Tuesday.

Meanwhile, merchants and police differed on protection supplied in the troubled area.

One merchant charged that his store was looted while two Negro policemen watched. But some Negro policemen claim that merchants, after removing valuable items, allowed gangs to loot their stores so they could collect insurance.

In Chicago, a North Side supermarket, which has been the scene of previous incidents, again was vandalized, and store windows were smashed in suburban Maywood after police used tear gas to break up a demonstration at the village hall.

The disturbance in Maywood, an integrated city 15 miles west of Chicago's downtown section, followed a meeting of the local branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Police said about 300 Negro youths marched to the village hall where the village board was meeting. After police used tear gas to disperse them, the youths moved to the downtown section where they smashed windows, overturned park benches and hurled objects at passing vehicles, slightly injuring ten persons.

Partisan Motives Listed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark says political partisanship and, in some cases, opposition to civil rights advances are the motives behind many of those who oppose the nomination of Abe Fortas as chief justice.

Clark, in an interview, also said the slaying of 10 persons Tuesday in a Cleveland Negro neighborhood was "the random act of a handful of very extreme and violent-prone militants," and not part of a nationwide conspiracy to cause racial unrest.

In discussing President Johnson's nomination of Fortas to move up on the Supreme Court from associate justice to succeed retiring Chief Justice Earl Warren, Clark said that "quite clearly there is dominant in the opposition a highly partisan strain that's unfortunate. I don't believe a political affiliation should enter into the qualification for nomination."

He added that "those who oppose securing equal rights and civil rights are opposing the nomination. I would suggest the basis for opposition, in truth, is their opposition to the very great advances that have been made in civil rights under law."

Clark also defended the Justice Department's stand in writing a controversial memorandum to the Senate Judiciary Committee praising Fortas. The department was criticized by opponents of the nomination of trying to propagandize the committee by the memo.

Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., said he requested the memo.

Clark said the department always has supported administration nominees for judicial appointments. He cited Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach's testimony in support of the nomination of former Mississippi Gov. John D. Coleman to the federal bench.

He said those who have made the memorandum an issue have used it "in an emotional way in my judgment just to create a diversion. I don't believe serious people are impressed by it, nor are other senators."

Newspaper Target For Terrorists

SAIGON (AP) — Terrorists struck in Saigon today for the second time in a week and blew up the city's largest Chinese newspaper.

Police said four young Viet Cong, two of them girls, set off a 60-pound plastic bomb in the press room of A Chau Van Quoc, the Asian Daily News, an anti-Communist paper which supports the Saigon government. No casualties were reported.

The terrorists, all armed with pistols, walked into the newspaper office just after 1 p.m. and ordered everyone out.

One girl terrorist pulled out the explosive charge concealed in a bag, planted it in the pressroom and fled with her companions.

Five minutes later an explosion rocked the three-story building, heavily damaging it.

Employees of the paper said the terrorists were Vietnamese of Chinese origin. The plant is located in Cholon, the Chinese section of Saigon where 300,000 Vietnamese Chinese live.

A few blocks away another Chinese paper, the Kien Quoc, was blown up June 6. Three persons were killed in that explosion, and 15 others injured. The Kien Quoc also supported the South Vietnamese government.

Last October, terrorists shot and killed the managing editor of A Chau after he had written several editorials criticizing Viet Cong assassinations.

Local Officials Trade Problems at Meeting

Mayors, councilmen and other local government officials from ten of the incorporated towns in the Sedalia area met at the State Fair Restaurant Thursday evening to get acquainted, discuss common problems, exchange ideas and learn more about what they can do as officials of their particular governmental unit. A total of 36 persons attended.

The program was planned and organized by mayors in Pettis County in cooperation with the Pettis County Extension Center.

Chairman of the meeting was Dale Brown, mayor of Green Ridge. Assisting as resource people were George Nicholas, mayor of Columbia, Richard Dohm, Department of Political Science, University of Missouri, Columbia; Don Beatty of the Municipal League, Jefferson City, and Frank Schwarzer, representing the Show-Me Regional Planning Commission. Schwarzer is the newly appointed executive director of the commission.

The two hours of discussion followed a dinner and dealt with many of the problems of incorporated areas. Included were discussions on sewer service charges, city budgets to comply with State laws, enforcing municipal laws, animal regulations, street and special taxes, involving citizens in governmental affairs, local and comprehensive plans, regional planning, county planning and zoning, sewer plant operations, garbage and trash disposal and municipal employees' retirement.

Vice-Presidential Offer Is Rejected

BOSTON (AP)—Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., took himself out of any consideration for the Democratic vice presidential nomination today with a statement saying "for me, this year, it is impossible."

Kennedy, last survivor of four Kennedy sons, said in a statement that his decision "is final, firm and not subject to further consideration." Kennedy said he is removing himself from consideration because of family responsibilities resulting from the assassination of his brother, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., last month.

The Massachusetts senator, in a four-paragraph statement, said he will speak out, however, on "foreign and domestic policies our party must pursue if it is to be successful in the coming election."

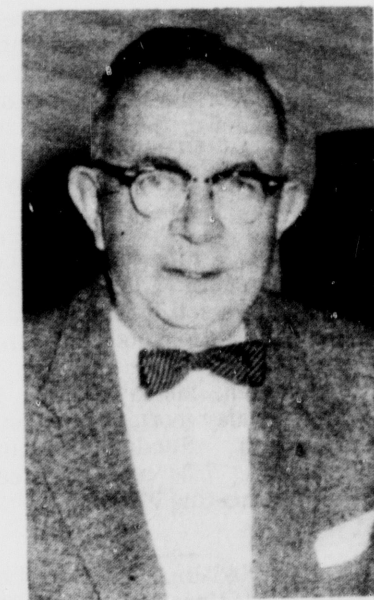

He said he appreciated the confidence of Democrats who have proposed him for the national ticket and "under normal circumstances such a possibility would be a high honor and a challenge to further public service."

Kennedy added, "My reasons are purely personal. They arise from the change in my personal situation and responsibilities as a result of the events of last month. I know that the members of the Democratic Party will understand these reasons without further elaboration."

"I have informed the Democratic candidates for the presidency and the chairman of the convention that I will not be able to accept the vice presidential nomination if offered and that my decision is final, firm and not subject to further consideration."

U.S. Defenders Exhibit Tensions and Anxieties

SAIGON (AP) — Mud-caked American GIs defending the approaches to Saigon exhibit a mixture of dread, confidence and impatience as they prepare for the third battle of Saigon.

Warned by their commanders that the third offensive of the year against South Vietnam's capital may be the biggest battle of the war, quite a number voice fervent hopes that some other unit will bear the brunt of the fighting.

Sitting at the edge of a rice paddy, hands cupped around cigarettes in the monsoon shower, combat infantrymen don't talk about the strategic importance of the battle, how it might affect the Paris peace talks or what would happen in Saigon if the enemy again breaks through the city's outer defense perimeter.

Instead the talk is of chances for survival, whether the unit will be rotated out of a particularly dangerous area before the

MKT Trains Back

The MKT tracks were clear and traffic was back to normal about 12:15 a.m. Friday.

Seven cars of a large freight train were derailed about 3:30 a.m. Thursday, 7 miles northeast of Sedalia near Beaman.

There were no injuries and only minor damage to the train. A large crane was dispatched to right the derailed cars. The train was reportedly bound for Parsons, Kan., at the time of the accident.

The train lasted an hour and 25 minutes.

Since Dzu, a lawyer, ran second to Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu last fall and then led opposition candidates in accusing the mili-

Peace Talks Advocate Given Prison Sentence

SAIGON (AP) — A military court sentenced the runner-up in last fall's presidential election to five years at hard labor today for advocating peace talks between the Saigon government and the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front.

The five-man court found Truong Dinh Dzu, the 51-year-old peace candidate in the October election, guilty of "actions harmful to the anti-Communist fighting spirit of the South Vietnamese people and armed forces."

The trial lasted an hour and 25 minutes.

United Stand Urged

PRAGUE (AP) — Czechoslovak leaders, awaiting decisive talks with the Soviet Communist party Politburo, were urged by pacemakers of this country's liberalization drive today to "defend unitedly the road on which we have started and which we will not leave alive."

The appeal came amid mounting concern over rumors that the leadership was split on how to react to Soviet pressure at the showdown meeting likely to begin next week.

The rumors were fed by the decision Thursday of the policymaking party presidium to remove Lt. Gen. Vaclav Pchlik, a chief target of Soviet attacks, from a key position in the party Central Committee.

The presidium ordered Pchlik back to army service and abolished the political department of the party which he headed. It controlled the army, security police and judiciary.

This was an apparent move to conciliate the Kremlin.

The Russian propaganda war against the Czechoslovak leadership continued unabated. The Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda attacked the departures from orthodox communism and said it was impossible to understand why these were not suppressed.

Usually reliable sources said they understood the decision in Pchlik's case had not the unanimous backing of the 11-member presidium.

Liberal Communist intellectuals voiced alarm over this indication of yielding to pressure from abroad at a time when popular support for the Czechoslovak party chief Alexander Dubcek, had reached a new peak.

Editors of Literarni Listy, a writers weekly and influential mouthpiece of the liberal elite, prepared an extra with an open letter calling on party leaders to negotiate and explain, "but unitedly defend the road on which we have started and which we will not leave alive."

Pchlik on July 15 told a news conference there should be a revision of the Moscow-dominated Warsaw Pact to give the other members an equal voice with the Soviets. The Soviet leadership was also angered because he openly criticized the delay in the withdrawal of Russian troops from Czechoslovakia after the Warsaw Pact maneuvers in June.

Unconfirmed reports in Prague said Moscow demanded Pchlik's removal in a secret note charging that Czechoslovakia had become a weak link in the Warsaw Pact chain.

Pchlik played a key role in the ouster of old guard party chief Antonin Novotny last January by tipping off the new party chief, Alexander Dubcek, to an old guard plot to use the army on Novotny's behalf. Pchlik was subsequently made the army's chief political officer and helped the reformists consolidate their hold on the reins.

The announcement of the liquidation of Pchlik's department depicted it as another move in the new party leadership's reform program, a removal of the army from the party's direct political control. But because of the recent Soviet attacks on Pchlik, his removal was immediately interpreted in Prague as a retreat by Dubcek and his associates from their firm opposition to the Russian demands.

At least two other prominent exponents of Czechoslovakia's new "socialist democratization" also have been publicly assailed in the Soviet Union, Interior Minister Josef Pavel and Cestmir Cisar.

Helps To Enroll Negroes

Charles N. Jordan

Tufts University, Medford, Mass., a school with high prestige and high tuition rates, is enrolling more Negro students partly because of the efforts of a Cleveland student, Charles N. Jordan, Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. Charles N. Jordan, Cleveland, Ohio.

His mother, the former Jewel C. Jones, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Jones, 400 North Ohio, grew up in Sedalia. He is a nephew of Mrs. Ralph Lee, of the above address.

Young Jordan has spearheaded a combined student, faculty and administration drive at Tufts to recruit and finance capable Negro students. He is 21 years old, a senior at the university and is co-chairman of Students Concerned About Racism (SCAR) there, participating in a biracial student conformation

Rev. and Mrs. James Kane

The Rev. James Kane has been called to serve as pastor of the Maplewood Church. Before his association with Village Missions, he was a manufacturer's representative in the East. A graduate of Millersville State Teachers' College and Philadelphia Bible College, he has served at Wood Lake and Bassett, Nebraska.

British Churches Move Toward Eventual Union

LONDON (AP) — Two of Britain's Protestant churches moved closer together when the Congregationalists and the Presbyterian Church of England voted, at their assemblies in May, for union by 1970.

The new United Church, as it will be called, is expected to have nearly 300,000 members with 1,500 ministers serving 2,000 churches throughout England and Wales.

However, in approving unanimously the general principle of union, the Congregationalists made a reservation that final decisions about the form of church government as it affects a single pattern of eldership and the diaconate should be left until later.

This will be borne in mind when delegates from the two churches draw up their formal outline for union, which is expected to be ready by next year. The outline plan will then be studied by individual member churches of the two denominations before final acceptance, which is expected in 1970 with ratification following a year later.

The grouping together of Congregationalists and Presbyterians in the new United Church will mark the first occasion on which union is achieved between historically separated churches in this country. But the Church of England and the Methodists are discussing union, too.

There are about 260,000 Congregationalists in England and Wales. Presbyterians number under 40,000, although there are many more in Scotland and Northern Ireland, who are not affected by the present merger.

The laity is expected to be given an important role in the United Church, presiding at Holy Communion when necessary. Men and women will be strictly equal, with women also eligible for the ministry. Local churches will have lay elders chosen by the church to share in preaching and pastoral work.

The Rev. Charles Haig, new president of the Congregational Church in England and Wales, said at its assembly that denominationalism was dying.

"Let us not seek to prolong its struggles," he said. "The inherited idea of a denomination is irrelevant to the life and work of the church today. The decline in numbers which began 50 years ago will go on until a united church is able to offer a new center for the life of the nation."

Episcopal Church Deposits for Poor

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Episcopal Church has deposited $675,000 in 45 banking institutions in low-income areas of the United States, a church official says.

The Rev. Canon Nicholas Kouletis of the Los Angeles Episcopal Diocese disclosed Tuesday that the church's executive council has re-invested $45,000 in three minority-group banks and savings and loans associations in Los Angeles.

Canon Kouletis said the church hopes to allow banks in Negro or Mexican-American sections to increase capital for business and home loans to people in their communities.

"My black friends tell me that putting money in black banks has done more good for them than all the preaching we've done in years," he said.

Pastor's Comment

By the Rev. G. L. Neely
Emmett Avenue Baptist Church

From every quarter today comes the query, "Where are the converts?" Perhaps another question provides the answer, "Where are the tears?" Dry-eyed Christianity simply lacks the appeal presented by the "faith of our fathers" that dampened the altar and made the sawdust trail glimmer in the lamplight. A conspicuous lack of tears betrays the fact that our message is all of the head and none of the heart. Until the glowing cheek of the preacher is reflected once more in the glistening faces of the pew there will be no converts; and without converts there can be no revival. "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem!"

Years before Christ came, one, whose heart was strangely attuned to the same Spirit, for the same, sinful city, of Jerusalem "sat down and wept." Those tears supplement the pen of Nehemiah to tell the beautiful story of God's faithfulness toward those who "sow in tears." They prove the promise, "He that goeth forth and weepeth, bearing previous seed, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him." Somehow there is in the human tears a force that knocks at the very gates of heaven and pleads at the throne of God. No pious prayer or sagacious sermon can match the eloquence of tears. Whether burning upon the cheeks of David confession his sins, or scalding the palms of Peter who has denied the Lord, they bear a message to the heart of God. Precious to the Father is that river whose fountain head is the broken heart of a weeping saint!

O God, crush these hearts of ours until we weep again. Help us to see what Jesus saw the night on Mt. Olivet that distilled upon His face in liquid passion and sent Him down to find eternal glory upon the cross. Mingle our prayers once more with those holy tears that gave us souls in other days. Let our gospel glitter anew against the background of scintillating sincerity. Then repeat the precious promise, "I have heard thy prayer, I have seen thy tears: behold, I will heal thee."

Restaurants Quickest Route Toward Poverty

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — It is said that the quickest way to go broke in America is to open a restaurant.

This is because practically everyone feels that he can run one, and a lot of people try. The facts of business life, however, are that no other industry has a higher failure rate.

"There are tremendous elements of chance," acknowledged Jerome Brody, who at 45 has operated not one but two chains of successful restaurants. "It makes ordinary gambling look like kid stuff."

"You can start a restaurant with two bucks and a key and build it into a profitable company, or you can put a million dollars into one and blow it all in six months."

Jerry is a strapping 6-foot-1 former Army bomber pilot, blue-eyed, brown-haired, fastidiously dressed and handsome as a matinee idol. Behind his success lies an almost legendary skill in showmanship in creating elegant eateries.

With no more credentials for restaurant operation than a few courses in business management at Dartmouth, he entered Restaurant Associates, Inc., shortly after the end of World War II. In 16 years he built it from a $5 million network of low-priced coffee shops and cafeterias into a chain of posh, expensive restaurants—including the Four Seasons and the Forum of the 12 Caesars here—grossing $32 million yearly.

About four years ago he left his first firm to form his own—the Jerome Brody Corporation. Its five restaurants—among them the Rainbow Room and the Rainbow Grill—now serve 20,000 meals a week and bring in some $12-to-$15-million yearly.

In prospect he has in mind the building of a world chain of swank restaurants.

"We're still living in an affluent society, and anyway what else is there but optimism?"

What are his guidelines in opening a new restaurant or rebuilding one that isn't doing well?

"An old restaurateur once told me there are only three secrets of success in this business—location, location, and location," replied Jerry.

"But I think that, besides location and luck, you must create restaurants that have a distinctive character, theme, or personality."

"You're competing against processed foods in the home and home television. To lure people out you have to give them more than a good meal. You have to make dining out a total experience, a feeling of luxury and glamor."

"Selection of personnel is a major problem, too, as it is in any industry. It's a personal contact business, not a mail order business."

"Not everyone is fitted for it. You have to be pleasant, dedicated and have a gregarious nature. You have to enjoy the work almost more than you do your private life."

Like most successful restaurateurs, Jerry has shown he has other key characteristics—taste, tact, and a creative talent.

At home he tends to stay out of his kitchen.

"I know what real cooking is, but I don't do much of it myself."

Draft Resister Has Nothing to Resist

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A self-proclaimed draft resister had nothing to resist Tuesday when an official at the induction center said he was temporarily unacceptable for service.

Neither the spokesman nor the protestor, Joe Thomas Gilchrist, 20-year-old Cornell University junior, would give the reason for the ruling.

Gilchrist, however, said he felt certain he would be called up later and said he would resist at that time.

Tough Tactics Were Justified

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Cleveland's peacekeeping civilians helped disperse Negro crowds by telling them police were looking for an excuse to shoot up their neighborhoods. Are such strong tactics really necessary?

The consensus of the volunteers, both militants and moderates, is that they are. Potentially unruly residents speak their own language, they say, and as Romie Stephens, a corporation executive, put it: "When in France, speak French."

Cleveland Mayor Carl Stokes, who approved the plan, said the main peacekeeping problem was getting crowds off the streets. And the crowds the patrol was worried about were teen-agers.

Just how hard it is was illustrated Wednesday night in a series of shouting, nose-to-nose confrontations by Stephens and others with a group of about 50 youngsters bent on looting a still undamaged record shop.

They were openly discussing what to take first when patrol members arrived.

"I know it ain't gonna do no good to tell you to go home," one patrol member shouted to a slender youth who had been egging others on. "I told you to go home two hours ago over on Superior Avenue and you ain't gone yet. But if you won't think of nothin' else, please don't get these women and children in trouble."

"Man, the cop ain't gonna get me," the kid boasted, not yet understanding the drift of the argument.

"The cops won't get you and they won't get me," Stephens cut in. "They'll come in here and they'll shoot up some innocent sister or brother who ain't done nothing." You know they're just itchin' for the chance.

That stopped the youth for a moment, and Stephens pressed his advantage, playing also to the crush of other youths who had crowded around to listen.

"Black nationalists are supposed to love black people," he said. "If you love black people, you won't throw their lives away."

"Our lives don't mean nothing to the white man," another peacekeeper was saying to a different crowd on the same corner. "So why would we sell 'em to him so cheap? Every time you bring whitey in here, he shoots a bunch of us down."

The youths argued back for a while, but eventually left the area, as had other potentially troublesome crowds before them. This, committee members said, the short-run effects were good, and the long-run effects, they hope will be a pride in black neighborhoods that will prevent burning them down.

They are not planting new thoughts about police, they say, just capitalizing on thoughts that are already there.

Such thinking is more common in America's big city slums that most people realize. Almost identical arguments have been used in peacekeeping attempts in San Francisco, Tampa, Fla.; Harlem, Washington, D.C., and Louisville, Ky.

Their potential effectiveness is tacitly acknowledged in the fact that in each case, moderate Negro leaders have supported the programs.

"I supported the responsibility adopted by the black community in its attempt to regain peace and order," said Charles Lucas, a candidate for Congress from Cleveland.

Neighborhood Youth Patrol Plan Approved

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Kansas City Police Board has approved a plan for a neighborhood patrol of youths 16 to 21 years old in a predominantly Negro area on the east side.

The 50 youths are expected to act as mediators and to lessen the need for police in the area.

"If a program such as this is properly administered, it should be of considerable help in keeping down racial difficulties and friction between the police force and the community," said Police Chief Clarence Kelly.

The youths will be paid $1.40 an hour for patrolling from 8 p.m. to midnight and may work a maximum of 26 hours a week. The money is supplied by the Labor department's Neighborhood Youth Corps.

The patrol will start Wednesday and there is enough money to run it until Aug. 26, said John Larson, corps director.

The oceans hold 50 quadrillion tons of salt—enough to bury all the earth's surface under a layer 500 feet thick.

First Manpower Cutback Begins This Saturday

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Post Office Department launches the first in a series of manpower cutbacks Saturday, shortening the hours of window service and reducing the number of street corner pickups.

The department, which announced the cutbacks two weeks ago, said they were being made to conform with the manpower reductions dictated in President Johnson's income tax increase bill.

The first reductions in postal service will shorten weekend window service at first- and second-class post offices to a maximum of two hours. Collection of mail from street corner deposit boxes will be made on Sunday schedules.

Next step in the reduction of service is scheduled Aug. 2 when 97 fourth-class post offices will be closed.

North Korea Insist On US Apology

TOKYO (AP) — North Korea reiterated today that the 82 crewmen of the Pueblo will never be returned unless the United States apologizes and promises it will "never commit such crimes again in the future."

A government memorandum repeated Pyongyang's contention that the American intelligence ship intruded into North Korean waters on Jan. 23 and that North Korea exercised its "legitimate right of self-defense" in seizing it.

"The U.S. imperialist aggressors can never get the crew sent back unless they make an apology for the criminal acts of the crew who intruded into the territorial waters of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea and perpetrated espionage and hostile acts, and give an assurance that they will never commit such crimes again in the future," it said.

Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., a Judiciary Committee member who has viewed the film which Miller called hard-core pornography, said earlier it was "something that no civilized country can tolerate."

He said one reason he blocked committee action on Fortas' nomination Wednesday was that he wanted all of the members to see the film before they vote.

Testimony about the film was presented to the committee by James J. Clancy, a Los Angeles attorney representing Citizens for Decent Literature, Inc.

Miller is a member of the national advisory committee of the organization.

broke out again in Saigon and in two provincial capitals to the north and south last weekend. Twelve Vietnamese were killed and 91 wounded in the bombings of four theaters, one only a block from the national police headquarters in Saigon.

South Vietnamese intelligence sources have warned that terrorist attacks might precede the expected big enemy attack on Saigon and other major population centers. Military spokesmen said in the 24 hours ending in noon today, eight more Vietnamese were killed and 26 wounded in terrorist attacks at various other cities and towns.

In the only significant ground action reported, units of the U.S. 101st Airborne Division sweeping near Saigon suffered 13 dead and 27 wounded in a 14-hour battle Thursday with North Vietnamese troops 27 miles northwest of the capital.

The car was headed south on Route C. Trooper Pieper reported, and the driver apparently disregarded various construction signs and continued on the roadway where construction is underway.

Burrowes

Sedalia High School in the spring of 1913.

He worked on the Sedalia Democrat during the later years of his high school and after graduation went to St. Joseph, where he was employed by the St. Joseph News-Press as a reporter and worked his way up through the newspaper to become its managing editor, which he attained in October 1939.

A newspaper man from the "old school," he was so dedicated to his work he went to his office seven days a week, at the St. Joseph News-Press and Gazette building. When employees went to his office with the first edition of the afternoon paper they found him slumped in his chair, at his desk.

The 74-year-old Burrowes had been editor of both papers in St. Joseph since 1939 and had been with the publication 55 years.

He came to St. Joseph as a 19-year-old reporter from Sedalia, where his father had been news editor for a quarter of a century and where a sister spent an even longer newspaper employment.

Burrowes' daughter, Mary Helen Burrowes, continued the family tradition as a member of the staff of the News-Press. One brother, now deceased, was managing editor of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat and another was, before his death, city editor of the Fort Worth, Tex., Star-Telegram.

Burrowes through the years produced a column titled "Timely Observations." Some of the items were staff produced but his formed the backbone of the column. Some came from his work on Sunday when he reported to the office after attending church services. Others developed from early morning writing he did long before most of the paper's staff reported at the office.

He was a past president of the Missouri Public Expenditures Survey, a citizens' watchdog group on state government, and was a member of the board at the time of his death. Altogether, he had been active in the survey 20 years.

He had a deep interest in politics and was a colonel on the staff of two of Missouri's recent Democratic governors. When the state began the practice of honoring outstanding Missourians he was elected a Missourian.

In 1932 he took leave of absence from the paper and worked with the Republican National Committee during the campaign for reelection. Burrowes considered himself a personal friend of the Republican nominee but his political views were broad enough he also counted Democratic President Harry Truman his friend.

He was married to Helen Cooney, a native of St. Joseph, and they had six children, five daughters and one son, all who survive. They are Mary Helen Burrowes, who is continuing the family tradition as a member of the news staff of the News-Press; Arthur B. Burrowes, a school teacher, of the home; four married daughters, Mrs. Lee Bloomingdale and Mrs. Thomas Morrison, who reside in Omaha; Mrs. Gene Sanders and Mrs. Larry Schiesl, who reside in St. Joseph.

His father, E. B. Burrowes, for many years was City editor of the Sedalia Democrat, and also worked on the Capital; his mother wrote for the old Bazon, and did writings for the Democrat. Preceding him in death other than his parents were, Miss Rosemary Burrowes for many years associated with the Democrat as City editor; a brother Lon Burrowes, was managing editor of the St. Louis Globe Democrat; Mark V. Burrowes was City editor of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram; another brother Evans B. Jr., was a reporter for a time for the

The speaker was introduced by Bob McDonald, program chairman.

Invocation was also by Abe Rosenthal who also led the singing with Mrs. David Eisenstein accompanist. Birthday greetings were extended to Robert Horton.

President William Dugan announced that the Rev. Medford Speaker had succeeded the Rev. George Sparling as a member of the board of directors. The latter is no longer a Sedalia resident.

Charles Frederickson at the head table was introduced by the president as Kiwanian of the Week; and Kim Iman was presented as a new member.

Guests were: Richard Barnum, Philadelphia, with Dr. D. R. Edwards; Mel Jenkins, Kansas City, with Cecil Owen; George Burden, Lees Summit; with David Eisenstein; Les Olson, Lees Summit, with Henry Keeler and John Ryan; Jerry, Bryan and Peter Dunne, St. Louis, and H. W. Harris with Bob McDonald; and Lowell Wilson with the Rev. Medford Speaker.

Barbara Dee Wear Marries Bruce Robison in Oklahoma

ENID, OKLA. — Miss Barbara Dee Wear and Mr. Bruce Wayne Robison were united in a double-ring ceremony at 2 p.m. June 29, in the Emmanuel Baptist Church. Rev. C. Mack Roark read the wedding vows.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond M. Wear and the granddaughter of T. E. Wear, Ottumwa. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack L. Robison.

Rita Risenhoover provided the traditional wedding music at the organ, and accompanied the soloist, Robert Reno.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a gown of crystalline made and designed by her mother, and styled in an empress A-line design with scoop neckline and long pointed sleeves. The gown and cathedral-length train were trimmed in Chantilly lace, entwined with seed-pearls. Her cathedral-length veil of illusion was held in place by a double-tiered crown of pearls and crystals. She carried a bouquet of white roses with streamers over her white Bible.

Attending the bride as maid of honor was Miss Linda Osburn, and matron of honor was Mrs. Myrl Wear, the bride's sister-in-law. Mrs. Jimmie Nance served as bridesmaid. They were identically dressed in gowns, of baby-blue crystalline. Each carried a nosegay of white daisies. They each wore headpieces of matching crystalline roses with pale-blue veils of illusion.

Jerry Walker and Marian Robison, sister of the groom, were the candle lighters. Rod Robison, brother of the groom, served as best man, and Myrl Wear, brother of the bride, and Jamie Robison, brother of the groom, served as groomsmen. Jim Nance and Ronald Wear, brother of the bride, seated the guests.

Miss Nancy Hutchins kept the guest register, and Miss Rosemary Sweet received the wedding gifts.

Assisting at the reception in the fellowship hall which followed the wedding ceremony were Mrs. Jane Wells, Miss Beverly Biggs, Miss Carolyn Weiss, Miss Karen Parker, Miss Pam Robison, Miss Jerry Walker, Mrs. Walter Mounce, and Mrs. John Cheers.

For travel, the bride chose a baby blue crepe shift dress featuring long flowing sleeves. The white rosebud corsage lifted from her bouquet and white accessories completed her ensemble.

The couple is at home in Enid.

Grand Jury Indicts Kansas City Man

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Richard John Lynch Jr., executive vice president of two Kansas City moving companies, was indicted by a federal grand jury Thursday for allegedly overcharging the government $28,000.

Lynch, 42, submitted a bill of $55,336 for moving equipment and files into the new federal office building Nov. 13, 14 and 15, 1965. The government alleges the bill included $28,000 padding.

James W. Rozell, 35, former teller and cashier of the bank in Ozark, Mo., was charged in an indictment with embezzling $5,435 from the bank between May 12, 1966, and May 12, 1967.

"Since You've Tried the Best Come Back & Eat the Best!"

MARIA'S PIZZA South Hwy. 65

WASHINGTON (AP) — New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller says as president he would work toward international creation of "a new world order" based on East-West cooperation instead of conflict.

The Republican presidential contender said he would begin a dialogue with Red China, if elected, to "improve the possibilities of accommodations" with that country as well as the Soviet Union.

Rockefeller said he would work to end the arms race and said this country and the Soviets must cooperate to prevent small wars in areas such as the Middle East from mushrooming into big ones.

Despite a long Communist record of broken commitments and the fact that Communist ideology remains hostile, he said, "we must also face the fact that the imperatives of the modern age impose the necessity for peace."

"We have no need to be mesmerized by our perils," Rockefeller said. "The possibility to build the new order we all seek is limited only by our imagination and dedication."

But he said there is no way to know when a "basic accommodation" would become possible. He said a new world order must be established by international cooperation; it cannot be created by any one nation.

Rockefeller spoke to the International Platform Association, an organization of professional lecturers.

Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, a Democratic presidential aspirant, indicated meanwhile he will drop hopes of meeting with North Vietnamese diplomats in Paris to learn first hand the prospects for settlement of the Vietnam war.

McCarthy said in view of the Honolulu communique issued Sunday by President Johnson and South Vietnam President Nguyen Van Thieu, "the chances of my doing any good are significantly reduced."

He said the communique indicating this country will not further reduce its military action in South Vietnam until North Vietnam makes some concessions laid out a position "quite different" from his own.

"Consequently," McCarthy said, "to come in and talk to the same people they're talking to would seem to be kind of an intrusion. The possibility of going might be interpreted as attempting to negotiate somehow over the heads of the administration."

McCarthy made the comments in Boston before addressing the largest crowd drawn by any candidate this year—35,875 according to the turnstile counters at Fenway Park, home of the Boston Red Sox.

Chicago Mayor Richard Daley Thursday quoted Sen. Edward M. Kennedy as saying he was considering whether to make himself available for the Democratic vice presidential nomination.

Daley said the Massachusetts senator made the comment during a telephone conversation. Kennedy has made no public response to talk by some Democrats that he would boost the party's chances for victory as the vice presidential nominee.

But the New York Times said today Kennedy has drafted a statement taking himself out of consideration for the nomination.

The story from Washington by Executive Editor James Reston said Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey is convinced Kennedy will not be available and is considering McCarthy and Kennedy's brother-in-law Sargent Shriver for the No. 2 spot.

On the Republican side, Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., endorsed Rockefeller for the GOP presidential nomination and an aide to Richard M. Nixon charged the announcement was prompted by the "lure of the vice presidency."

Nixon said Thursday night, "I'm not going to make any deals on the vice presidency." But he said that he had talked to Percy and, "I didn't feel Percy endorsed for this reason."

Nixon made the comments in a taping session for the "Joey Bishop Show" to be broadcast on ABC television Friday night.

In other political developments: —Humphrey said in Washington his concept of opening administration decisions to greater public participation is especially aimed at "outsiders in our society" who "have been excluded from meaningful participation in our national life because of race, poverty, geography or modern technology and industrialization."

Committee Summoned To Confer

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A United Steelworkers committee that can ratify a contract or call a strike has been summoned to Pittsburgh on Monday—just two days before 388,000 men will be free to walk out of the mills.

The union is not saying which is expected. President I. W. Abel would say only that the 600-man group, called the basic steel industry conference, will hear a report on the negotiations.

"These negotiations are like a poker game," said one local union president who has been attending them for 20 years. "You can't tip your hand until the last minute. The pot might always go up."

The talks have been so secret that only a handful of union officials know what is in the pot, or whether there is a pot at all. The last time Abel talked to the basic steel industry conference 10 days ago he said the industry had made no offers on wages.

phys or modern technology and industrialization."

—Third party presidential candidate George C. Wallace's supporters outlived protestors at a noisy rally in Providence, R.I. At one point Wallace said to boos from the crowd: "That's some of the free-speech folks, you know."

—Miami Beach Police Chief Rocky Pomerance said strict limits will be placed on protest demonstrations at the GOP national convention beginning Aug. 5 to keep them "within limits which will not endanger delegates or the public."

pensions, vacations, job security, incentives and other big-money items.

The response was a strike vote.

Now all the formal machinery is in place for the seventh steel strike since World War II. If the union conferences does not ratify a contract on Monday, the mills will have to begin closing down, a delicate process that takes up to 48 hours.

Flat Creek Responds

Strictly by coincidence, but nevertheless apropos, were related pictures and a news story on Page One Thursday on the subject of Flat Creek flood conditions.

The news item called attention to a public hearing concerning a proposed Flat Creek flood control project scheduled for 7:30 p.m. August 27 at Smith-Cotton High school. The pictures were of flood conditions in the area as a result of four and one-half inches of rain hereabouts, more or less.

The picture of Flat Creek flood waters was certainly typical of what happens to this stream every year, some years worse than others.

Wednesday an expenditure of $20,000 was approved by the Senate-House conference committee for use in a study of the control project south of Sedalia, according to a message from Senator Edward V. Long. As though to substantiate not only the need for a study, but also some positive action to harness Flat Creek, the deluge came early the next morning. It again showed the capacity of Jupiter Pluvius to cause financial distress in the Pettis county bottomlands. Flat Creek feeds into the Lamine river. Up around Beaman where one report said seven inches of rain fell, one can imagine the need for some restraining reservoir on Flat Creek which dumps a powerful lot of water into the Lamine when Thor starts throwing his hammer around to stimulate excess precipitation.

In view of the repeated circumstances under which this situation occurs sometimes more than once a year, Thursday's pictures of the flood area will offer better evidence than words if they are presented at the public hearing next month. The hearing is designed to let area residents express their views about flood conditions on Flat Creek.

The Corps of Engineers should be supplied an earful as well as an eyeful of information about this beneficial stream which can so frequently become cantankerously damaging to crops and roadways.

Code of Ethics Regarded as Joke

By DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON
WASHINGTON — The phoniest move by Congress this year was to pass an alleged code of ethics. The code didn't even begin to deal with the finagling and backstairs lobbying that takes place on Capitol Hill.

One illustration of its failure is what is happening with television, where crime and violence programming is influencing the crime rate in this country. In England and France, where the crime rate is almost zero compared with the United States, television is strictly regulated. In the United States it is supposed to be regulated by the Federal Communications Commission. But in real fact it is not.

Basic reason: the influence of congressmen who own TV stations or have law firms which represent TV clients or who want favors from the networks. In addition, the President's family, for the first time in history, is a TV owner. Congressmen with pocketbook interests have cracked down on the Federal Communications Commission brazenly.

When the FCC tried to limit the number of commercials on TV, for example, the House wrathfully voted 317 to 43 to strip the agency of this power. Few other issues have received such overwhelming House support.

The secret of the television industry's hold over Congress is threefold:

Secret No. 1 — Congressmen like to see themselves on TV, and TV stations offer a lot of free time. A broadcasting magazine survey indicated that 70 per cent of the senators and 60 per cent of the representatives film TV reports to constituents which are shown "as a public service" by local stations.

The taxpayers, incidentally, provide both the Senate and House with free radio and television studios. The members pay for little more than the cost of the film, scarcely a fraction of what commercial studios would charge. Sen. Everett Dirksen, R-Ill., for example, gained an advantage over other recording stars by cutting his profitable, patriotic recording of "Gallant Men" in the tax-subsidized Senate studio.

Secret No. 2 — The radio-TV industry has more influence on Capitol Hill than any other lobby, except possibly highway lobby. The National Association of Broadcasters has lined up station owners in every state who can be called upon to apply pressure upon their congressmen. When the occasion demands, the NAB can back this up with letters from its 3,600 member stations. Each network also keeps a vice president in Washington, whose main function is to keep congressmen happy.

Secret No. 3 — Many congressmen have a pocketbook interest in broadcasting through personal or family holdings in radio-TV stations. Equally significant, congressmen's law firms have radio-TV clients.

To illustrate, Rep. Clarence Brown Jr., R-Ohio, isn't the least abashed about feathering his nest via WCOM in Urbana, Ohio. As executor of his father's estate, he holds 75 per cent of the station's voting stock. Yet he has become the champion of radio-television interests inside the House Communications Subcommittee, which processes all broadcasting legislation.

Looking Backward

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

The home of the late Mrs. Lynn Ilgenfritz, 210 West Broadway, has been purchased by Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Adams, 725 West Fourth street. The home was recently sold by E. M. Stafford, Sr., executor of the Ilgenfritz estate, to Roy Snyder, Pettis county court reporter, who in turn sold it to Mr. and Mrs. Adams. The home is now occupied by Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Hurley and family.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Sedalia Country Club golfers emerged from the Inter-City Golf Tournament finals in Columbia as winner and received a silver trophy. Final scores of the teams were: Sedalia, 1171; Columbia, 1147½; Jefferson City, 1095; Fulton, 905½.

NINETY YEARS AGO

The Boonville Advertiser refers to the probable removal to Sedalia of Mr. Milo Blair with his newspaper "The Eagle." His proud bird of liberty which has roosted in the three-story brick at the corner of Main and Spring in Boonville, will be boxed up and carried to Sedalia where, after she has selected her eyrie, her scream will henceforth be heard.

—1878—

There is a great deal of sickness in the city and country now, and physicians are kept busy. Flux seems to be the prevailing disease but there are, comparatively speaking, few deaths.

broadcasting corporation. Equally brazen, he sought to restrict educational radio and television. He was willing to permit the teaching of academic courses on educational stations, but he introduced legislation to prevent these stations from broadcasting dramatizations, classical music or cultural activities which might attract viewers away from the commercial channels.

Another brazen pocketbook congressman is Paul Jones, D-Mo., when the FCC tried to regulate the TV commercials, the loudest howl came from him. He did not reveal that his family then owned a substantial share in KBOA of Kennett, Mo.

"I have had a recent experience with the Federal Communications Commission," he wailed on the House floor, "and have been the victim of rulings made by incompetent employees who have been given too much authority with no supervision and no responsibility. When you try to talk to some of the commissioners, you are usually referred to some subordinate."

"I want to predict that unless we do pass this legislation (to prevent the FCC from limiting commercials) we are going to find the Federal Communications Commission, and particularly the employees of that commission, taking unto themselves authority which no one feels they should have."

Rep. John Dellenback, R-Ore., who owns a large block of stock in KMED-TV of Medford, Ore., called for a statute last April that would require the community-antenna TV companies to pay copyright fees for the programs they pick up from the networks.

Equally brazen, this legislation is being handled in the Senate by Sen. John McClellan, D-Ark., who owns an interest in Midwest Video, a CATV complex. His son and son-in-law are also stockholders. He doesn't worry about this obvious conflict of interest.

In an interview with Television Magazine, McClellan described the CATV business as "vital."

"I will oppose anything I think will destroy it," he snorted.

This is part of the case against Congress. The public has been fooled by the adoption of a code of ethics, but that code merely brushes a lot of unethical conduct under the rug. Indirectly, this is one reason there is so much crime and violence on television.

Democrat Pickups

A little boy, with a wild, scared look on his face, ran excitedly around the house where the woman across the street lived.

"Lady," he exclaimed breathlessly, "come around here in front, come around here in front."

The woman had no idea what was wrong but she knew it must be something rather bad, maybe a window knocked out by a ball, or something.

She went around with him to the front and he pointed down to the gaillardias growing in front of her house.

"Are those flowers poison?" he wanted to know, his eyes as big as saucers.

"No," she told him, "they aren't poison. Why did you think they were?"

"Well," he explained, "my ball went in them and when I started to pick it up I got stickers in my hand."

And sure enough he did, but not from the gaillardias. Growing low underneath was a cactus and he thought if those stickers were poison he was just as good as dead, he had so many. So she sent him home to have his mother take the stickers out of his hand and assured him that he would have no bad effects after she got them out. — H.L.

Taxpayers Ask IRS

Q — I've never filed an estimated tax before. How can I tell for sure what my income is going to be this year?

A — One method of estimating your 1968 tax is to use the income and expense figures appearing on your 1967 return. If your income or expenses change during the year, you can amend your declaration when quarterly payments are due in September and January.

Remember, too, that an estimate is just that. As long as your payments are made on time and total at least 80 per cent of your final 1968 tax liability, you will not be penalized.

MONEY CLIPS

Condition Makes a Difference

Many readers have written to ask why a coin considered to be in "good" condition fails to realize a "good" price when offered to a dealer. After all, good is good. Or is it?

Well, yes and no. To the layman "good" is an adjective descriptive of anything desirable. To the numismatist, "good" is generally conceded to mean "barely acceptable," and is seventh in a nomenclature of eight terms used to define the collectable condition of a coin.

These universally accepted grading standards were compiled by a group of eminent numismatists and anyone contemplating the sale or purchase of a coin should avail himself of them and be guided by them to insure against a bad transaction.

This matter is covered completely in James Johnson's column, Fair to Very Fine, in the July 10 issue of Coin World, and I am taking the liberty of passing all eight standards along to you, supported by illustrations of the three extreme conditions.

Proof (PF)—A Proof coin is especially struck on specially prepared planchets with specially prepared dies. It is a specimen coin not intended for general circulation. The carefully processed, mirror-like finish should be free of flaws and blemishes. Tarnish by time or improper handling reduces its value.

Uncirculated (UNC)—A coin minted in a regular manner on a regular planchet with regular dies. It is intended for general circulation. Its brilliant mint luster finish is the result of coining operations without special treatment. Bag flaws and blemishes are not uncommon but excessive defects could reduce the market value. A cleaned or polished coin should be noted.

Extremely Fine (EF or XF)—A coin showing only slight wear on the high points. (See illustration.) It may or may not retain its mint luster.

Extremely fine

Very Fine (VF)—A sharp desirable coin with slightly more evidence of wear than the coin in EF condition but still only on the high points. This wear should be noticeable with the naked eye. A coin in this condition will not usually display any of the original mint luster.

Fine (F)—A sharp, desirable coin. Its general appearance is most important since it is the last of the really nice conditions. There will be more wear to the high spot than on the previous coin but it should be even. Details with an uneven wear will reduce this

Fine

Very Good (VG)—Every detail is clear but not sharp as in the three foregoing coins. The date, rim and all major lettering and legends are complete on the obverse and reverse. (Whether or not the word LIBERTY is complete depends on the series.)

Good (G)—All marginal lettering and all digits of the date are readable although the tops and bottoms may be worn in such series as the Buffalo nickel and the Standing Liberty quarter. In those particular issues all digits must be readable even if they are not complete. The general design is clearly outlined but the features may be worn on coins with LIBERTY on the headband, none of the letters will be noticeable. (See illustration.)

Good

Fair (FR)—Very much worn but readily identifiable as to date, type and series. Some portions of the design are worn away completely but parts of the major lettering should be visible. Any coin in this classification is good only as a filler and any value would depend on its rarity.

There are intermediate classifications generally applied to coins whose condition is slightly better than one grade and slightly less than the next higher. For example: ABOUT UNCIRCULATED (AU) is often used by some to denote a very desirable coin but one that has a little less wear than specified for EXTREMELY FINE but enough to prevent it passing as uncirculated.

A lot of players would manage to go down at today's spade slam. It isn't too difficult. South knows all about those thousands of Englishmen walking the streets of London with no soles to their shoes because they failed to pull trumps, so South draws trumps and possibly runs off an extra couple for good measure.

If East and West discard sensibly on these five trump leads, South will go down. He will go after clubs and ruff the third lead. Should those three leads clear the suit, South would make all 13 tricks. But they won't and South will be held to a very unsatisfactory 11.

The correct line of play will bring home the bacon. South should study the hand carefully before leading to the second trick. He will see that he needs three club tricks for his contract. Therefore he won't make it if clubs break worse than 4-2.

Can he make it if they break 4-2? Yes, provided he can get to dummy to collect a trick with the fifth club.

Then, operating on the principle that you play for your contract, South will promptly cash dummy's ace and king of clubs. When both opponents follow, it will be all over but the mopping up. He will ruff a club, enter dummy with the queen of trumps, ruff another club, draw the rest of the trumps and eventually get to dummy with the ace of hearts in order to cash the last club.

The whole point of this line of play is that dummy had two entries outside of the club suit and South had to plan his play to conserve both of them. One was needed to get to dummy for a fourth club lead; the other to get to dummy to cash the fifth club.

The word turnpike is derived from the hinged poles or pikes used to halt travelers until a toll was paid. The World Almanac says. After payment, the pike was turned to allow the traveler to pass. From circa 1800 to 1840, a great era in U.S. turnpike construction, tollgates were six to 10 miles apart and tolls were from 10 to 25 cents a vehicle.

BETTY CANARY

For Shame, Mother

Parents of America, rest not on your laurels, neither on your thousand volunteer hours at the hospital nor your countless carpool miles driven for sticky-chinned children. Long did I believe such things, as well as my hours spent baking heart-shaped cookies, made me a good mother. But, the dark truth is out. All my good works have been for naught. I stand revealed.

There I was at the last-day festivities of Girl Scout day camp and I knew not my daughter's unit number. If only I'd had my wits about me I'd have asked a normal-type volunteer if my daughter was in shelter house No. 1 or No. 2. But, no, I asked the woman in the green percale Indian dress. "What is her unit number?" she asked sternly.

"Golly, I don't know," I replied glibly. (A woman in a green percale Indian dress is not a Volunteer but One Who Is Doing Her All for the Girls and does not take easily to glibness.)

"Ohhhhhhh!" she moaned. "You do not know the UNIT?"

"Easy," I said. "The Hamlet tryouts are next week."

"Her group? What is her group?"

"I'm sorry, I do not know."

"This mother does not know the GROUP!" she shrieked.

"Not in front of the little ones," I pleaded, thrusting my two small children behind me.

"Is she a Gypsy? Is she a Foot Traveler?"

"Why don't we look at the list?" I murmured.

"Don't you TALK to your daughter?"

"Maybe you're trying out for Midsummer Night's Dream," I said.

"I have a mother who doesn't know if her daughter is a Gypsy or a Foot Traveler!" she boomed. We waited together. I, head hung in shame; she, alert in her green percale fringe. Waited for the taunts from other mothers or, possibly, the Yale Glee Club to sing "Careless."

"She tells me important stuff," I whimpered humbly. "About the spider she caught and how she lost her canteen and, of course, about Leigh vomiting during the flag ceremony."

"I cannot help you," she said. "Maybe you can make it up to her when and if you find her. Stay for songs and stunts in both shelter house No. 1 AND shelter house No. 2 is what I would do!"

"I shall! I shall!" I promised. And, I did. Actually, there was no other way. A volunteer fireman had parked in front of me and I couldn't get out of the lot.

THE DOCTOR SAYS

Safety Precautions For Night Drivers

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Because every minute of your vacation time is precious to you, you may be tempted to do some of your driving at night. This requires special precautions if you want to see daylight again. Bear in mind that the accident rate at night is more than double the daytime rate and most of these accidents are caused by poor visibility.

If your vision is normal (20-20) it is still possible that your peripheral or side vision (your visual field) is narrowed, that your ability to adapt promptly to changes in lighting is slow, that you do not focus normally or that you have driven until you are overly tired.

This is especially true if you are driving three or more hours after your usual bedtime even though you may have been driving only an hour or two. If you feel the least bit drowsy, you should pull off the road and either take a short nap or drink some coffee that you were foresighted enough to bring along. Better to be a little behind schedule than to lead the procession into the next world.

If approaching headlights bother you, learn to look at them out of the corner of your eye — not head on. This will not only make them less blinding but will also help you to adapt faster to the reduced light after they have passed. Above all don't turn up your bright lights to show your displeasure at a motorist who fails to dim his — two light-blinded drivers face a far greater danger than one.

When driving at night it is wise to maintain a speed about 10 m.p.h. slower than you would under like conditions in the daytime. This not only makes you a much safer driver, it also decreases the danger of passing your exit or making a wrong turn. Judging the distance and speed of other cars is hard enough in daylight — at night it is almost impossible. For this reason, you must be doubly cautious when overtaking a car in your own lane. It may be going very slowly or it may even have stopped.

Finally, make sure not only that your windshield is clean but also that your lights are, too, because you will need all the visual advantage you can get.

Patience Pays Off For Some, But For Others It Is Useless

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Patience finally paid off for Jim Northrup and Joe Torre, but against Bob Gibson it appears almost useless.

National League hitters have been waiting for almost two months—since May 28—for Gibson to lose, but the hard-firing St. Louis right-hander is having none of it. In fact, it's almost as difficult just to score a run against him as it is to beat him.

The Philadelphia Phillies are the latest left watching and waiting as the veteran hurler cut them down 5-0 Thursday night on five hits for his 11th consecutive victory and eighth shutout of the season.

Now with a 14-5 record, Gibson has yielded more than three runs only once in those 19 decisions, and in his last 92 innings he has allowed only two runs.

So the wait goes on against Gibson, but for Northrup and Torre, it has finally ended.

The slugging Northrup waited three weeks—since July 4—before breaking a home run slump Thursday night and Torre drummed his figures for five weeks—since June 20—before he connected.

Northrup broke loose for two blasts, driving in three runs, and helped the Detroit Tigers to a 4-1 rain-shortened victory over the Washington Senators in the only American League contest.

Torre unloaded a three-run clout in Atlanta's 4-2 triumph over the New York Mets.

In the only other game in the National League, Cincinnati scored a 2-0 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates, who waited and waited for the clutch hit and never got it.

Gibson left little hope that the Phillies would be the ones to break him down. He struck out six, walked one and allowed only one runner as far as second base in posting his 12th complete game in a row.

His victory string and this 33rd shutout of his career each tied Cardinals' team records.

Chris Short, 9-10, had the misfortune to be the opposing pitcher and the Cardinals touched him for two runs in the fourth inning on Johnny Edwards' single. Two more scored in the fifth on Orlando Cepeda's double and Mike Shannon's hit, and Gibson doubled in the final run in the eighth as the Cardinals swept the four-game series, extending Philadelphia's losing streak to seven games.

The victory, by the way, also kept St. Louis' National League lead at 12½ games over Atlanta.

Detroit, wrapped in a 6-9 slump since the All-Star break, raised its American League lead to 5½ games over idle Baltimore entering a three-game weekend series against the Orioles.

Northrup, who says hitting a home run "tends to make you overwing," brought the Tigers in with a two-run shot in the first inning and a leadoff belt in the third, giving him 15 for the season and 59 runs batted in.

The homers made it easy for Joe Sparna, 8-9, who walked six men but allowed only a single by Paul Casanova before rain ended the contest after 6½ innings.

Atlanta had its troubles against the Mets' Dick Selma, who was coasting behind a one-hitter in a scoreless duel against Phil Niekro until his defense let him down.

With two out in the sixth inning, Felipe Alou tripled and third baseman Ed Charles booted a ground ball to break the tie. Hank Aaron's infield hit followed and then Torre unloaded his eighth homer.

"I knew it would come. I knew I could hit one," said the burly catcher of Atlanta's first homer in 11 days.

Niekro raised his record to 10-7 with a six-hitter while Selma fell to 8-6.

George Culver, who pitched six innings to bring his record to 8-9, and Clay Carroll allowed Pittsburgh 13 hits, but stranded 13 runners in a frustrating evening for the Pirates.

The Reds won their sixth straight game with two out in the fourth inning against Bob Veale, 8-10, on consecutive singles by Johnny Bench, Tommy Helms and Don Pavletich and a double by Leo Cardenas.

Coach is Employed By Junior College

Fred C. Wehking, former varsity basketball coach and intramural director at Trinidad State Junior College, Trinidad, Colo., has been selected as the new coach and physical education director for the State Fair Community College, it was announced here Friday by Fred E. Davis, president of the college.

For the past two years Wehking has been with the completed both his undergraduate and his master's work with a major in physical education. While securing his master's degree at Missouri University, he was a graduate assistant in the physical education department there.

In 1959-60, Wehking was basketball coach at Sarcoxie, Mo. In 1960 he joined the physical education department at Helias High School in Jefferson City. While in that city, he managed the Jefferson City Ban Johnson baseball team that won three successive state championships. From there, he took the coaching position with the Trinidad State Junior College.

In coaching high school teams, Wehking's basketball squads won three conference championships. In his second year at Trinidad, his basketball team was ranked seventh in the nation in defense.

Wehking is 36 years of age, married, and the father of five children with three sons, ages 8, 6, and 3, and two daughters, ages 4 and 1. He and his family are moving to Sedalia about Aug. 15, at which time they plan to purchase a home.

Dr. Stephen Poort, dean of instruction, State Fair Community College, in commenting on how fortunate the local college was in securing Wehking for the faculty, also supplied some information about the college's athletic program.

Dr. Poort said the college plans to offer a strong physical education program involving both men and women students. The intramural program will have activities for both men and women. Women also will have an opportunity to become involved in both pep club and cheerleading activities.

Men will have an opportunity to participate in varsity basketball with another major varsity sport, either baseball or track, to be determined at a later date.

Poort said the college hopes to provide inter-collegiate competition in other athletic events such as golf, bowling, and tennis in the future. Present plans call for 10 full scholarships to be provided with part-time jobs available as well with a beginning schedule of approximately 12 to 15 games the first year.

physical education department at Southwest Missouri State College, Springfield, where he has been supervisor of men's physical education student instructor and basketball coach himself. Along with these duties Wehking was the director of intramural activities at the laboratory school on the SMS campus.

The new State Fair Community College coach has had an extensive and successful background in coaching, starting as assistant basketball coach at the Moberly Junior College in 1954-55. He assisted Maurice E. John, now head basketball coach at Drake University, Des Moines, Iowa. Wehking was a star athlete at the Moberly Junior College prior to this time, being a member of the national championship team in his freshman year.

Leads First Round In Women's Open

TORONTO (AP) — Carol Mann played under unusual strain but finished as the first-round leader Thursday in the $20,000 Supertest Women's Open Golf Championship.

"The pressure was really on because I felt I won the tournament last Sunday the wrong way and I had to prove something," the 6-foot-3 blonde said after carding a four-under-par 69 for a two-stroke lead.

Miss Mann, of Towson, Md., was declared the winner of the Cincinnati Open last weekend after Marilyn Smith, the actual winner, was assessed a two-stroke penalty for slow play.

Marlene Stewart Streif of Toronto, veteran Canadian amateur, tied for second place with Pam Barnett of Charlotte, N.C., and Sandra Spuzich, of Indianapolis, Ind., at two-under 71.

Only two other golfers, Patty Berg of Minneapolis and Clifford Ann Creed of Alexandria, La., managed to break par over the 6,448-yard Bayview Golf and the Country Club course. Each had a 72.

The 54-hole tournament ends Saturday.

Prediction Of Global Baseball

NEW YORK (AP) — Imagine, if you can, a baseball series between the Tokyo Giants and the Peking Reds with the Los Angeles Dodgers waiting in the wings to take on the winner.

A pipe dream? A fantasy? Not at all. Baseball Commissioner William D. Eckert said today to his very close friend, Toru Shoriki, president of the Yomiuri Giants, perennial Japanese baseball champions.

"My aim is to see that baseball goes global, that it's played by every country in the world," Eckert added. "Only last night I was telling Ted Sorenson (advisor to the late President John Kennedy) that it's my aim to see baseball taken behind the Bamboo Curtain into Communist China."

"With supersonic travel in the offing, I see baseball going to every corner of the world, including Communist countries. It would do much to solve world tensions."

Shoriki, prominent Tokyo publisher and sportsman, paid a courtesy call on the commissioner, who was Japan's guest on a visit of the Los Angeles Dodgers two years ago.

They talked enthusiastically about their favorite subject. "Attendance is higher in Japan than it was a year ago," Shoriki said. "Baseball still is the most popular sport in Japan. Soccer is coming up. Wrestling is going down. Golf is staying steady."

Grid Fortunes Vary

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

Ross Fichtner's fortunes are looking up and Ron Kramer's have taken a turn for the worse. Sam McDowell stepped on a scale to have his fortune told and it didn't cost him a penny—only a professional football contract.

Fichtner, 29, dropped several days ago by the Cleveland Browns after a racial incident, signed Thursday with the New Orleans Saints.

The Detroit Lions gave the 33-year-old Kramer, an 11-year tight end, his unconditional release.

And the Miami Dolphins decided to let McDowell go after the rookie from Southwest Missouri weighed in at 375 pounds, a mere 80 more than the amount at which his contract stipulated he should report.

Fichtner, a eight-year safetyman, was the second veteran to join the Saints recently. Dave Parks, an end who played out his option with San Francisco, signed with the National Football League club last week.

The Browns placed Fichtner, who is white, and John Wooten, a Negro guard, on waivers after a dispute which arose when the Browns' Negro players were not invited to participate in a golf tournament which Fichtner arranged.

Wooten, a nine-year veteran, has not disclosed his plans.

Kramer, one of the league's premier performers during eight seasons with Green Bay and three with Detroit, was hampered by injuries last year. But his career record shows 229 receptions for 3,272 yards.

"I may make a few calls to some other clubs," he said. "But then again I may decide to call it quits and hang them up."

Coach Joe Schmidt said he planned to carry two tight ends—Jim Gibbons, 31, a long-time Lion, and rookie Charlie Sanders, the team's No. 3 draft choice.

Although McDowell, a 6-foot-7 offensive tackle, was told to report at 295 or less, the Dolphins must have had their doubts. The team's brochure lists him at 335 pounds.

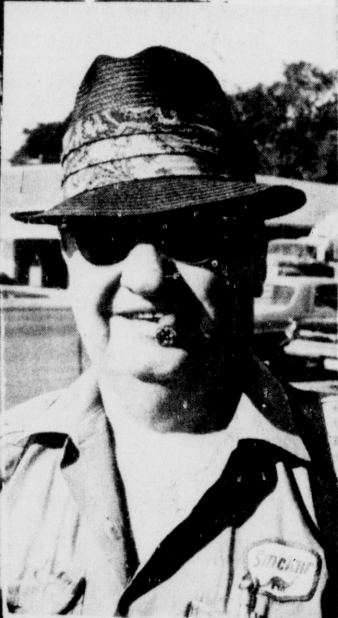

"We felt McDowell's own good that he should not play this fall," said Joe Thomas, the club's personnel director.

Elsewhere, defensive end Leo Carroll, who left the Atlanta Falcons' training camp without explanation last week, informed the team he was quitting. The 260-pounder from San Diego State was the Falcons' top draft pick in 1967 but was injured during a pre-season game and sat out the entire campaign.

The Pittsburgh Steelers signed the last of their rookie holdouts—No. 1 draft choice Mike Taylor of Southern California. They said the offensive tackle had undergone a knee operation without letting them know about it. The team doctor said Taylor's knee was in good shape.

He and Webster and the other sponsors still behind the new baseball entry—John Newman and Sidney Malsin of Montreal and Robert Isray of Chicago—were working with Mayor Jean Drapeau of Montreal to replace the pair.

Fighter Plans Rest

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Buster Mathis, the onetime fat man of the heavyweight boxers, plans to lose more weight and enjoy a vacation after cutting down giant Jim Beattie in their scheduled 10-round match Thursday night.

Fighting at 226½ pounds, the lightest in his pro career, Mathis stalked Beattie for six rounds, then floored his heavier, more experienced opponent twice in the seventh to score a technical knockout.

"I felt even stronger and I was even faster," said Mathis, who weighed about 285 when he turned pro three years ago. "I want to go down to 210."

Mathis, 24, of Grand Rapids, Mich., notched his 19th knockout in 26 pro fights. His only loss was an 11th round technical knockout to Joe Frazier a few months ago, in which Mathis maintains he was beaten by exhaustion. He weighed 243½ then and decided to peel off more pounds to gain speed and stamina.

Enthusiasm May be Low For CBS' Crime Series

By DICK KLEINER
NEA Hollywood Correspondent

HONOLULU — (NEA) — The assistant director pulled the trigger and fired into the banyan tree. He was just shooting blanks to scare off the birds whose incessant chirping was ruining the sound track — but the shots were symbolic of the relationship between CBS' new series, Hawaii Five-O, and the beautiful island where it is filmed.

Like the birds in the banyan tree, Hawaii really doesn't know what is going on. The islanders are warm and friendly toward the project and believe it will be helpful for tourism, Hawaii's big business. But there is a growing suspicion that they won't be as enthusiastic when they see it. They may not like the fact that it is a crime show, and projects an image of crime-ridden island.

Even the Hawaiians in the cast are walking around with their heads in the clouds. Kam Fong, one of several Hawaiians with continuing roles, compares Hawaii Five-O very favorably with the old clinker, Hawaiian Eye.

"This series," he says, with a scrutable smile, "is in color, and the people on the mainland will see our beautiful island."

True. The company is shooting all over Oahu — the main island, home of Honolulu and Waikiki. There is only one small interior set, the rest being location work. So far it has all been on Oahu, but ultimately they plan to visit the outer islands, too.

So the scenery will be lovely. But the content of Hawaii Five-O is crime and the solving of crime, and knowledgeable Hawaiians worry lest the mainlanders get the idea that Hawaii is one big criminal laua.

They were shooting at the idyllic home of a state senator on Noela Drive, on the slopes of Diamond Head. The camera was set up on the lanai, by the pool, shaded by the huge, gnarled banyan and the graceful, whispering shower trees and the delicate, fragrant plumeria. The house itself was done in an architectural style which someone called Spanish-Chinese.

All beautiful. But what the actors were talking about was murder — violent, explosive murder.

And, perhaps, because of it, their off-camera conversation was about violence, too. Jack Lord, the series star, and guest star Simon Oakland talked about television and violence.

Oakland has strong opinions. Once he had told me he thought television violence was good, because it allowed the public to work off its aggressions vicariously. He still feels the same, even in this era of dedicated (on paper) anti-violence.

"They should show more blood on the screen," he said. "They should show what a bullet and a knife can do to human flesh. Don't dwell on it, but show enough to scare the kids."

"Did you see a picture called 'Psycho'?" Lord asked.

"I was in it," Oakland said. "I played the psychiatrist."

"Right after it came out," Lord went on, "a girl somewhere — it might have been Chicago — was killed the same way Janet Leigh was in

Says Temptation Comes From Extras, Not Stars

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Being heroic around a prisoner of war camp isn't Bob Crane's only act of bravery. The star of CBS' Hogan's Heroes — like every Hollywood leading man — must be heroic every day about girls.

"The hardest job I have," Bob says, "is to convince Anne (his charming wife) that all the glamorous girls I work with after awhile seem just like men. And they do. For a girl to be an actress, she must be like a man, competitive, hard, unfeminine."

He says they do nothing for him — even Elke Sommer, his co-star in "The Wicked Dreams of Paula Schultz," or Sue Lyon, his co-star in a recent television adaptation of "Arsenic and Old Lace."

"The only temptation for an actor," he says, "is from the extras, not the stars. On a set, the extras come around, wiggling their bottoms, and they have nothing to lose and everything to gain to a male star worked up. All you have to do is say to one of them, 'Will you have lunch with me?', and you're in big trouble. So you stay away from them — and you get a reputation for coldness."

"Dick Crenna was that way. On Slattery's People, he had the rep of being cold. Nonsense — it was just that he had enough sense to stay clear of the extra girls."

Then there are the nuts. "I got a call from a girl in San Francisco," Bob says. "She wanted to come down and see me. I asked her if I knew her. She said, 'Oh, come on now — we only had a child together.' Turned out she was a nut."

There are times when a prisoner of war camp looks good to Hogan.

Susan Strasberg is, maybe, five feet tall, if she stretches. This natural shrimpiness is about the only limitation she has, and one gets the distinct impression that it frustrates her.

She was talking about the kind of parts she plays. A fine young actress, Susan has played all sorts — Indians, Chinese, Italians, everything.

"Of course," she says, stretching to her tallest, "I have to face the fact of my physical limitations. I couldn't play a six-foot Amazon. I'm just not a horse, although if I was asked to play a horse, I'm a good enough actress so I could play a horse and play it pretty well."

Susan makes her home here now, and is happy about it.

"I'm much happier than I was in New York," she says. "There I was up tight, anxiety-ridden all the time. Here I'm relaxed."

"I've heard people say they're lonely in California. That's because, if you're lonely in New York, you can always go out and find someplace to go, something to do. But it's just a cover-up for loneliness, just a frantic cover-up for the same old loneliness."

NOTABLES' QUOTABLES:

"There's too much abnormal sex in movies. It always seems as though it were directed at either the oversexed or undersexed, not at normal people." — Edward G. Robinson.

"I'll never go into politics. I don't feel qualified, and I have the old-fashioned idea that a man should be qualified before he runs for office." — Dick Van Dyke.

"My oldest son — he's 15 — thinks I'm too mod. He just asked me for a Navy blue blazer and a black knit tie, so maybe there's hope for all of us." — Eileen Heckart.

"I won't pose for any beefcake pictures. The actors who do it — or the actresses who do nude scenes — do it because they're really not actors at all." — James Garner.

Tension Is Eased In Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — A limited number of white police and National Guardsmen moved back into Cleveland's Negro slums Thursday, even as black community leaders were credited with making good progress in calming the areas overnight.

"We do not think the danger has passed," Mayor Carl B. Stokes told a news conference. His words were reinforced less than an hour later by an anonymously telephoned bomb threat on his life.

Headway Made
But he said much headway was made in ending lawlessness during the night hours when white police and the guard were kept out of four tense Negro neighborhoods.

In contrast to the 10 dead and 19 wounded in three hours of sniper fire Tuesday night, the Negro mayor reported three fires, 36 stores looted and 13 arrests Wednesday night.

Return Guard
The guard was returned to a dozen or so locations where citizens' patrols had not been able to prevent looting Wednesday night, Stokes said.

In place of the soldiers and white officers, Negro police and about 500 concerned Negro citizens patrolled from dusk to dawn, counselling against the looting and fire bombing that many groups of teenagers said they were itching to start.

Strategy Session Held
"I feel we owe a great deal to the citizens of the community and its black leadership, who prevented more trouble," the 41-year-old mayor said.

Most — but not all — of the 100 Negro peacekeepers who hatched the plan agreed with Stokes. They held an hours-long strategy session with the mayor Thursday, then although most had not slept the two previous nights, fanned out into the crowded slums again to try to improve on what they had accomplished just hours before.

Message to Citizens
Stokes, stayed at City Hall all night, cut a radio and television tape, to be played every hour on the hour, urging Negro citizens to stay home.

"We had no shooting and we had no deaths," Stokes told a news conference in discussing the results of his experiment to have blacks enforce peace in their own neighborhoods.

Councilman Speaks Out
One of the least enthusiastic Negro leaders, city councilman Leo Jackson whose ward includes the volatile Glenville area that saw most of the deaths, fires and smashed windows picked on that very statement to explain his opposition.

Expect Enemy Strike

VC In Area Of Central Highlands

SAIGON (AP) — A North Vietnamese buildup in a new area of the central highlands alerted U. S. officials Thursday to the possibility that the next enemy blow may be struck there.

In response to the threat, U.S. B52s, the heavyweights of the Air Force, struck six times Wednesday and early Thursday in the area north of Ban Me Thuot, capital of Darlac Province.

"If there's going to be any action, it looks now like it will be in Darlac Province," a senior U.S. officer said.

"There are good sized concentrations in there," another officer reported. "You might say they have rehabilitated the area."

Ban Me Thuot is about 110 miles south of the area of Kontum, hitherto considered the most likely point for an enemy drive designed to cut South Vietnam in two.

But intelligence reports say the North Vietnamese in the Kontum area near the borders of Cambodia, Laos and South Vietnam have been on the move to the south.

There was no estimate of the size of the force moving into Darlac Province. But enemy forces deployed in the central highlands previously have been identified as six regiments, each of about 1,500 men.

Cropland Flooded

This scene is from the bridge over Flat Creek on Route W, south of Smithton. Flat Creek is out of its banks and covering many acres of cropland, particularly the area north of the bridge. (Democrat-Capital photo).

Route DD Closed

This area on Route DD, just east of Route W, south of Smithton, was closed by about six feet of water Thursday morning. The corn on each side of the road will probably survive. (Democrat-Capital photo).

Hoodlums Imprisoned On Assault

TITUSVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Their beards, boots and bravado gone, "Spider," "Super Squirrel" and "Fat Frank" were ordered imprisoned Thursday for nailing an 18-year-old girl to a tree because she flunked a motorcycle gang prostitution assignment.

The trial for the "crucifixion" of shapely, red-haired Christine Deese ended suddenly when the defendants—all former members of the now-defunct "Outlaws" motorcycle club—changed their pleas to guilty.

James "Spider" Owings of Port Arthur, Tex., who in the gang's language was Christine's "old man," was sentenced to four years for aggravated assault. Defense attorney Richard Hanes said at the sentencing that it was Owings who drove the nails into the girl's hands.

Christine, now 19, gave a sworn statement it was when she failed to carry out Spider's orders to prostitute herself and bring him "$10 before sundown" last November that she was hit on the head with a beer bottle and spikes were driven through her palms.

Bleeding, she sagged against the tree for 15 minutes before the spikes were removed, she testified.

She said she was nailed to the tree by Spider, "Fat Frank" Link Jr., of Houston, Joe "Super Squirrel" Sorsby Jr. of Cypress, Calif., and John "Crazy John" Wables and Donald "Mangy" Graves of Indianola, Fla.

Court of Records Judge Cecil Rosier sentenced Link to two years and Sorsby to one year for aggravated assault. Wables was discharged with credit for (See HOODLUMS, Page 4)

Rainfall Welcomed By County Farmers

With few exceptions where some crop damage was reported, the rainfall received Wednesday night and Thursday morning was a boon to Pettis County farmers.

Rainfall ranged from .7 of an inch to a reported seven inches in the Beaman area. Sedalia weather officials reported a total rainfall of 4.57 up to noon Thursday.

Sedalia, as usually happens in sudden rainfall, was flooded in many places. The underpass on East Broadway at Ingram, West Broadway and West Main, the area on Engineer around 14th, and many other streets in low lying areas were flooded.

Many of the streets showed indications of water some three to four feet deep. The water had subsided by around 6 a.m. when people began going to work.

This heavy and rapid runoff disappeared from the Sedalia area but made its effect felt in the Flat Creek bottoms. Up to noon, the flood threatened to cover many roads in the Beaman area.

Route DD, just east of Route W, south of Smithton, was closed with about six feet of water. The water was nearing the roadbed on Route W, but by noon had not closed the road. Highway Department maintenance men keeping their eyes on the water said it had just about reached a crest in that area, but they were kept busy clearing debris from

Burrowes, St. Joseph Editor, Dies

Arthur V. Burrowes, 74, former Sedalian, a newspaper editor of national recognition died unexpectedly Thursday in his office at the St. Joseph News-Press. He was managing editor of the newspaper.

He was the son of the late E. B. and Teresa Moore, well known newspaper people in their own right, affiliated with Sedalia newspapers over the years during the late 1800's and the early 1900's. He was born in Sedalia Dec. 23, 1893, and was reared and educated here attending the Sacred Heart Parochial grade school and was graduated from the old Sedalia High School in the spring of 1913.

He worked on the Sedalia Democrat during the later years of his high school and after graduation went to St. Joseph, where he was employed by the St. Joseph News-Press as a reporter and worked his way up through the newspaper to become its managing editor, which he attained in October 1939.

A newspaper man from the "old school" was so dedicated to his work he went to his office seven days a week, at the St. Joseph News-Press and Gazette building. When employees went to his office with the first edition of the afternoon paper they found him slumped in his chair, at his desk.

The 74-year-old Burrowes had been editor of both papers here since 1939 and had been with the (See BURROWES, Page 4)

MKT Freight Cars Derail Near Beaman

Seven cars of an MKT freight train left the tracks about seven miles northeast of Sedalia near Beaman about 3:30 a.m. Thursday.

The train was westbound, reportedly heading for Parsons, Kan. According to an MKT spokesman, the derailed cars were roughly in the middle of the lengthy train.

Shortly after noon Thursday, the cars were located about two miles east of Beaman awaiting a large crane to replace them on the tracks.

There were no injuries, and only minor damage, it was reported.

Soviets Announce More Maneuvers

Propagandists Link Reformers With Reds

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union announced more military maneuvers Thursday and stepped up its propaganda campaign against Czechoslovakia's reformist leaders by linking them with Mao Tse-tung.

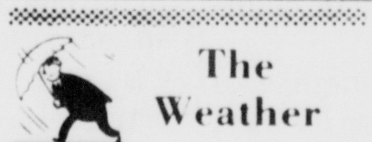

Premier Alexei N. Kosygin met in the Kremlin with Czechoslovak Foreign Trade Minister Vaclav Vales to discuss trade between the two countries, which could serve as a means of exerting economic pressure. They were reported to have taken up "questions of mutual interest during a friendly talk."

Kosygin's presence in Moscow countered speculation that a scheduled meeting between the 11-man Soviet Communist party Politburo and the Czechoslovak Presidium in Czechoslovakia had already started.

Soviet moves indicated an escalation in the war of nerves against Alexander Dubcek's Prague regime before the showdown, which Prague sources expect to take place early next week.

Russian authorities said an anti-aircraft exercise called Sky Shield is now under way. This announcement came only 36 hours after the Soviet armed forces started logistic maneuvers in the western part of the country, including that along the Czechoslovak border.

Soviet troops also were reported on the move in parts of East Germany, which adjoins Czechoslovakia on the north. (See SOVIETS, Page 4)

The Weather
Partly cloudy to cloudy through Saturday with a chance for thundershowers. A little warmer in south Friday. High Friday in the 80s to around 90 extreme south.

Sunset Friday will be at 8:30 p.m.; sunrise Saturday will be at 6:10 a.m.

Hearing On Flat Creek Work Set

A public hearing on a proposed Flat Creek flood control project has been scheduled for 7:30 p.m., Aug. 27, at Smith-Cotton High School, the office of U.S. Sen. Edward Long reported today.

Long's office said the information was received in a letter from Col. William G. Kratz, Kansas City, district engineer for the Corps of Engineers.

According to Long's office, an expenditure of about $20,000 was approved Wednesday by a Senate-House conference committee. The funds will be used for study of the flood control project in the area south of Sedalia.

The original authorization for the flood control project was co-sponsored by Sens. Long and Stuart Symington and was adopted in 1965, according to Long's office.

The public hearing, designed to allow residents of the area to express their views in relation to the project, is a necessary prerequisite to the study, it was reported.

Soviets Halt Tourists

Czech Leaders Ready For Showdown

PRAGUE (AP) — The Soviet Union was reported Thursday to have stopped the flow of Russian tourists to Czechoslovakia as this country's reform-Communist leadership prepared for a showdown meeting with top Kremlin leaders.

This could be interpreted as adding an economic phase to Soviet political and military pressure against Czechoslovakia's liberalization drive.

At the same time, the Defense Ministry labelled as a fabrication a London newspaper's claim it had received information on a Czechoslovak army plan to defend Czechoslovakia against a possible invasion by Soviet troops.

The newspaper Vecerni Praha (Evening Prague) said the government travel bureau Cedok had been advised that its Soviet counterpart, Intourist, had cancelled all group tours scheduled for July.

The denial of the story of an anti-Soviet Defense plan, printed in the London Evening News, was issued by a Defense Ministry spokesman.

Not So Safe on the Farm .

Is it pointless to keep hammering away on the subject of accident prevention?

One might think so considering the mounting toll of deaths and injuries throughout the nation.

Promotion of greater safety on the highways has received more emphasis consistently than any other category related to saving lives and limbs and property damage.

Since this happens to be Farm Safety Week the subject lends itself to pleas for more caution and less carelessness in an area one might believe is the safest place on earth—the farm. But this is a fallacy which many Central Missouri farm folks will acknowledge as a result of traumatic experiences.

Statistics reveal that approximately 8,000 farm residents are killed and another 700,000 suffer disabling injuries annually, among which are 1,000 deaths from tractor accidents.

Something not generally known, however, is the fact that more than twice as many disabling injuries occur in the home than on the nation's highways, and more persons suffer disabling injuries in farm residences than anywhere else on the farm.

Here again carelessness and negligence are, by far, the principal reasons for most of these accidents. Leon J. Urben, manager of the National Safety Council's Farm Department, emphasizes the need for correcting dangerous conditions such as loose throw rugs at the top and bottom of stairways, slippery shower stalls, make-shift ladders, littered rooms where persons can trip and fall. Children are blamed for these conditions but adults can share the blame, especially those who leave their shoes in the middle of a room instead of placing them in a corner out of the way of foot traffic.

Crusades for safety embrace warnings not only to farm folks but to city dwellers, such as turning handles of cooking utensils to the back of the range out of reach of children or even adult persons passing by. Then there is the careless handling of flammable fluids, overloading of electrical circuits, faulty wiring, poor housekeeping in the basement, attic and garage; the need of ample illumination to lessen the possibility of someone stumbling over an unseen object.

The list of safety precautions is endless. Everyone can think of some personal trait of carelessness that needs to be corrected whether the individual lives on the farm or in the city. National Farm Safety Week is an appropriate time to start thinking about what each person can do to stimulate the perpetual crusade against accidents.

De Gaulle Dined Then Fired Friend

DREW PEARSON and JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — The inside story of how President De Gaulle fired his Prime Minister, Georges Pompidou, can now be told.

Three weeks ago De Gaulle telephoned Pompidou and invited him to dinner.

"I know it's your birthday," De Gaulle said, "and if you have other plans, perhaps to dine with your family, we will understand. If not, I hope you will join us."

The dinner took place at the Palace Elysee. Only four were present: President and Mme. De Gaulle, with Premier and Mme. Pompidou. The dinner was delicious and there was a beautiful birthday cake. There was also some rather interesting conversation.

"You don't look well at all, Pompidou," said Mme. De Gaulle.

Pompidou replied that he was very tired. "Of course it's nothing that a short rest won't fix up," he added.

De Gaulle said that Pompidou's health was very worrying. "It looks as if you need a good rest for the difficult path ahead."

Several times Pompidou's health was emphasized, and the fact that he needed a good rest for the future.

As the evening closed, De Gaulle's parting words were: "We'll discuss the matter of your rest tomorrow."

That evening Pompidou confided to close friends that he couldn't sleep: He realized that De Gaulle wanted him out.

Next day his Chef Du Cabinet got a telephone call saying that Pompidou was to be in no hurry about moving. This was the clue. Pompidou was out. He received no other message from De Gaulle, but read in the papers the next morning that Foreign Minister Couve De Murville was being appointed in his place.

— Chapter I: Exit Pompidou —

This was Chapter II of the relations between De Gaulle and Premier Pompidou. Chapter I took place previously during the height of the student-workers' strikes when De Gaulle rushed back from Romania.

Pompidou went to see him. He had brought a petition signed by French veterans, the partisans who supported De Gaulle when he was in exile. They now advised him to step down.

Pompidou had the petition in his pocket and had planned to advise De Gaulle that it was time for him to resign. De Gaulle was exhausted. He had called

THE GLOBAL VIEW

A Cold Look at Humphrey's 'Thaw' in Soviet Relations

By LEON DENNEN
NEA Foreign News Analyst

NEW YORK (NEA) Vice President Humphrey, who was once a firm supporter of Communist "containment," now advocates a policy of "reconciliation" in East-West relations.

Since he aspires to be the next president of the United States this dramatic change in Humphrey's views requires careful consideration.

Is the time ripe for a "thaw" in the relations between the United States and Soviet Russia? Are the Communists, in view of their long record of duplicity and subversion, more trustworthy today than they were two decades ago when the policy of containment was first inaugurated by the State Department?

The answer is, of course, that "revolutionary wars of liberation"—the subversion of the free world—remains the foremost objective of Marxist-Leninists, whether they are pro-Russian or pro-Chinese.

Nevertheless, it would be unrealistic—even a serious error—to ignore the fact that since Stalin's death in 1953 the Red world has been reacting to severe strains.

Soviet leaders repeatedly have revised their foreign policy—to veer between "hard" and "soft" policies—and postpone the "inevitable" showdown with the West.

Things do change, however slowly and tortuously. Two decades ago, as Humphrey said in his statement on foreign policy, the United States faced "an aggressive and highly centralized Communist bloc."

Today, Red Russia and Red China are engaged in a bitter conflict. With Romania, Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia increasingly critical of Russia while seeking closer ties to the West, the Communist countries no longer pose a monolithic threat.

The Kremlin leaders are painfully aware of this. They no longer can rely on their East European satellites. And China is an overt enemy.

The Russians now look for results wherever they can get them, choosing their methods on strictly pragmatic rather than ideologically tidy lines.

For the present it is in their interest to ignore Fidel Castro's protests and seek to expand trade with Latin America.

For the present, too—until they have resolved the conflicts in the Red world—they also want to maintain the status quo in West Europe, at least a truce in the Middle East and the reopening of the Suez Canal.

The obvious reason for Moscow's unusually co-operative attitude toward the American-Soviet nuclear nonproliferation treaty is to restrain West Germany from becoming an atomic power for as long as possible.

The treaty, hailed by optimists as a milestone in American-Soviet relations, is also Moscow's excuse for denying the East European satellites nuclear energy even for peaceful purposes.

This explains why Romania, in an unprecedented diplomatic move, decided to sign an agreement with the United States for expanded co-operation in technology, science and industry.

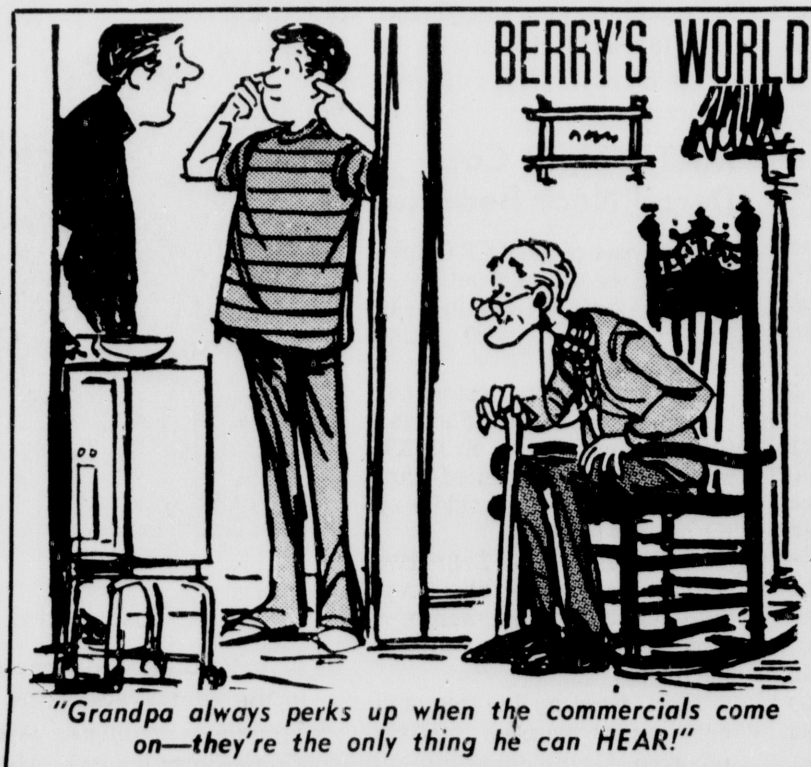

The Kremlin's compromise on the nonproliferation treaty and the current peace moves in the Middle East are another indication that coexistence will be backed by diplomatic action whenever Moscow finds it advisable. It is even conceivable that the Russians will continue to aid North Vietnam and the Viet Cong only as long as this policy appears to be producing diplomatic gains.

This is, after all, what foreign policy is all about. The foreign policy of any country is simply concerned with the expansion of its power, influence and strategic posture.

If the West is to outwit the Russians in the complex diplomatic game, it will have to be better at playing its cards, or simply hold a better hand, and not to confront the Communists with unacceptable alternatives—peaceful coexistence or limited revolutionary wars.

The Communists remain Communists. They will always be ready to exploit any weakness or opportunities in the non-Communist world.

But a policy to ease East-West tensions must not necessarily be based on Western ideas of how the Kremlin should behave.

One of the classic problems faced by declarer at a suit contract is when to pull trumps. If you don't pull them you risk having the defense ruff one of your winners. If you do pull them you may lose control of the hand.

South wins the opening heart lead. His first thought is to draw trumps right away so as to avoid the chance of a club ruff against him. He doesn't need dummy's trumps for ruffing purposes.

If he does this it won't require much skill on the part of the defense to beat him. West will hang on to his ace of clubs and not give dummy's club suit a chance to develop.

The winning line of play is for South to save dummy's trumps as potential entries. He must go after clubs immediately.

Let's see what happens. At trick two South leads a low club. West makes his best play and ducks. South can afford to play two rounds of trumps now and should do so. He wins the second trump lead in his own hand and leads a second club.

If West ducks, South simply leads a third club and eventually will get to dummy with the last trump to get two diamond discards on the long clubs. He will make his contract with an overtrick.

West can stop the overtrick by winning the second club and giving his partner a ruff, but he can't beat the contract.

Of course, West could have beaten the contract had he made the inspired opening lead of a diamond. This would set up two immediate diamond tricks for the defense. Then if West were smart enough to win the second club and give his partner a ruff, South would be off four tricks before he got around to discarding on clubs.

Restless Student: Here's What Makes Him Tick

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)

University professors have now begun to do research on student unrest.

One such unpublished study by S. L. Halleck, M.D., professor of psychiatry at Wisconsin University, deserves more than passing interest. It seems to suggest a little knowledge is a dangerous thing.

Halleck divides "the determined minority of restless students" into two groups:

The activists — those who "reject the political and economic status quo and are making vigorous attempts to change the structure of our society."

The alienated — those who "reject the values of their society as well as the values of their own past and are developing a style of life which is contradictory to the Western ethics of hard work, self-denial, success and responsibility."...These students "sometimes participate in efforts to change the society but for the most part they are withdrawn and passive."

"Alienated students and to a lesser extent, activist students find it difficult to sustain goal-directed activity. Their capacity to organize for any kind of action is limited...even their political efforts seem highly disorganized."

"Alienated students live at the edge of despair. Although they seem at times to be enjoying life, there is always a sense of foreboding about them. Often they become depressed and suicidal. Activist students are more emotionally stable but are also prone to deep feelings of hopelessness and self-pity."

"...most alienated students...tend to seek medical or psychiatric excuses from their obligations at the first sign of stress. They also have a discouraging tendency to break laws and to insist that their own personal needs and problems are such that they should not be held accountable for these actions...When students are occasionally arrested for smoking marijuana, they almost always avoid punishment by becoming informants and thus...avoid legal accountability..."

"Today's restless youths," says Halleck, "have grown up in a world which has not been dominated by religious faith but which has sought many of the answers to the questions of life in science...In their adherence to scientific rationality they...cannot accept guilt...Many are affluent and have grown up in suburban communities where, except for what they see on television, they are shielded from the tragedies of life...They are convinced that...man should be joyful and guiltless..."

"When a person raised with such beliefs encounters the harsh realities of life, he has little to fall back upon...He may project his anger upon those whom he feels are frustrating him...In his conviction that there are rational solutions to any problem, he cannot help but be intolerant of the irrationalities of those who prevent progress...If he perceives his own aggressive tendencies, he is frightened by them and attempts to deny them...In his belief that life and especially the sexual aspects of life can be enjoyed without guilt, he becomes highly disturbed when he discovers that...a certain amount of guilt is inevitable. He even becomes plagued with additional guilt over the realization that he is guilty...Too often such a student find(s) it necessary to construct 'devil' theories of history in which the existence of evil is attributed to only a few who block the progress of the man..."

Pigment-Forming Cells In Skin Cause of Moles

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Q — What is the cause and treatment of brown and black moles?

A — Moles are caused by a collection of pigment-forming cells in the deep layers of the skin. They are present at birth but do not become evident until the second year of life or later. Whether they appear to be brown or black depends on the concentration of the pigment. They should be removed only if they are thought to be unsightly or show malignant degeneration — a sudden increase in size or change in color.

Q — I am 18 years old and have a red birthmark on my ankle. Is there any method of removal other than plastic surgery?

A — Your birthmark can be temporarily masked with cosmetics or permanently by tattooing. Irradiation with Grenz rays and freezing with carbon dioxide snow have also been used successfully.

Q — I have several small moles on my neck. I have had them before but they disappeared. Thinking they were caused by my liver I used to take calomel but now I can't get it without a prescription. What do you recommend?

A — I would strongly advise avoiding calomel. In small doses it acts as a laxative and irritates your colon. In large doses it causes mercury poisoning. In any case, your moles are not caused by the state of your liver. There are several ways of treating moles — see answers to the previous two questions. For the best treatment in your own case you should consult a dermatologist.

Q — I have heard that myelofibrosis is a hardening of the bone marrow. A member of my family who is 63 has had this disease for five years. What is the prognosis? How does a doctor tell how much of the marrow has hardened? Is there any treatment?

A — In this disease the marrow is replaced by bone, a change that is easily recognized in an X-ray film. The victim usually complains of weakness, easy fatigability and weight loss. The course is slowly progressive but it can be halted for a time by blood transfusion and irradiation of the spleen or removal of that organ. Recent reports indicate that massive doses of male hormone with iron and corticosteroids are beneficial.

Taxpayers Ask IRS

Q — I plan to rent my house while I'm in Europe for two years. Will this income be taxable?

A — Yes it will. However, you may deduct from the rentals you receive, depreciation as well as the amounts you spend for taxes, repairs and other expenses.

Keep good records of both your rental income and rental expenses so that you will be able to file an accurate return next year.

Q — Why does IRS want the name, address, and social security number of someone who is a big winner at Kenos or some other game in Reno?

A — This information is required so that the casino can report to IRS the payments it makes of $600 or more of gambling winnings. This is similar to the procedure that race tracks follow.

of his soybean crop. It was noted on a trip through the beaman area that some corn had been flooded, but will probably not be damaged.

The rainfall was general throughout the county, the ASOS Office spokesman said, which will delay or prevent entirely the necessity of requesting the county be called a disaster area due to drought.

Thundershowers can be expected intermittently through Friday in much of Missouri. Some locally heavy rains are expected in the northwest, according to the Associated Press.

There was a lot of rain over the state today, most of it in the central and northern parts of the state.

For a 24-hour period Warrensburg reported almost five inches, Sedalia 4.57, Centerville 5.90 and Kansas City almost four inches.

Rain fell in Moberly during the morning and some flooding of basements in low parts of the city resulted. In Kansas City the fall was heavy enough this morning to hamper traffic at some low-lying street intersections.

In nearby Liberty flash flooding occurred with water up to four feet deep in some areas of the town extending from the town square south of U.S. 71 bypass. The rainfall was measured at 4.50 inches during the night and water entered at least two homes.

The Weather Bureau forecast Friday afternoon temperatures near 90 in the northwest part of the state and as high as 93 in the east and south. For tonight the lows are expected to be in the 70s.

Police Reports

Carol Green reported to police that someone broke into the concession stand at Centennial Park sometime Wednesday night and took cigarettes valued at $3.50.

Ray Dawson, 1006 West Tenth, reported to police that vandals slashed three tires on his car while it was parked at 207 West Main Wednesday night.

Police received a call at 2:50 p.m. Thursday from Mr. and Mrs. John McBurney, 616 West Henry. The McBurneys were trapped in their house when a chimney flue fell in, blocking the doorway to the house and filling it with debris.

Firemen were called to the scene and helped evacuate the McBurney's from the house through a narrow path through the debris.
